THE KANSAS CITY STAR

THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 2013 A5

Dear Kansas City community and Sprint employees,

I'm sure you have seen the news of our proposal to merge with Sprint Nextel Corp. I would like to take the opportunity to introduce myself and our company, DISH. We believe that our proposal presents a superior alternative to the proposal from Japan-based SoftBank. Just as importantly, we are confident that we can create highly compelling and unique opportunities for those involved, especially Sprint's employees, shareholders and the Kansas City community.

We founded DISH over 30 years ago in Denver, opening a retail store to sell large C-Band satellite dishes in a space once occupied by a vacuum repair business. Our company was built on delivering innovative access to video entertainment that, at the time, few Americans thought possible.

We created the nation's third largest pay-TV provider and today we employ more than 25,000 people and serve more than 14 million American households. We continue to be driven by the idea of creating a fully-integrated, nationwide bundle of in- and out-of-home video, broadband and voice services that will meet rapidly-evolving customer preferences.

Our proposal for Sprint comes at a time of tremendous change and opportunity for both our businesses. As data usage becomes increasingly video-centric, home and business users are consuming profound amounts of data through fixed, wireless and satellite networks. Our home and business worlds are converging and both are increasingly portable.

Given our collective resources, assets and history of innovation, a combined DISH/Sprint will be uniquely positioned to capitalize on the significant opportunity presented by the rapid advancements in services and technology.

Since founding DISH in 1980, I've remained committed to growing the company for the long term. Our proposal is about just that: building a company that can deliver sustained growth over many years.

We look forward to the opportunity to work together with Sprint's Board and its management team to develop a combined vision, remaining mindful of how it will benefit customers, employees, shareholders, and, of course, the Kansas City community. As things move forward, we will stay in touch.

Respectfully,

Charlie Ergen

Chairman, DISH Network
