Do Not Be Fooled by Lesser and the Current Board's Half Truths

David Lesser highlights his role in Keystone Property Trust (Keystone) as the shining example of his REIT experience. He did have a role in its formation. But for the documented history of the rise of Keystone, examine the filings which Lesser has never disputed:

2000: Earnings Collapse, Keystone Shifts Strategy

For fiscal year ended December 31, 2000, Keystone's CEO said the company "fell well short of our capital recycling objectives for the year.¹ In 2000, Keystone posted net income per diluted share of 9 cents – versus 80 cents in 1999. Keystone said "the decrease in net income was attributed to the $11.3 million asset valuation provision recorded in the third quarter of 2000" – the first full fiscal quarter immediately after Lesser left the board - on properties Keystone was seeking to sell.³ Keystone said it took the $11.3 million write-down as it had sought to sell the properties since first quarter 2000 and during the sales process *determined the carrying value exceeded the net realizable value.*⁴ (emphasis Added)

Shortly after Lesser left the board, "in the fourth quarter of 2000, we [Keystone] announced a strategic change in our investment focus, concentrating on owning large, modern industrial distribution center assets in markets serving east coast population centers."⁹ (emphasis added) Between January 2001 and December 2003, Keystone sold $586 million of office and industrial property –acquired during Lesser's tenure– and bought bulk distribution centers. By the beginning of 2003, we [Keystone] had substantially completed our repositioning to a geographically focused industrial REIT.⁹ In mid-2004, Keystone was acquired by ProLogis, a REIT which owned industrial distribution properties.⁸ (emphasis added)

Keystone Stock Performance in Lesser's Tenure

For the first full two years of Lesser's tenure on the Keystone board (1998 and 1999), the stock slightly outperformed the NAREIT Index. However, in 2000, the year Lesser left the board, the stock lagged the NAREIT Index and continued to trail in 2001.

By 2002, LONG AFTER Lesser's Tenure, as Keystone implemented its NEW STRATEGY, the stock out-performed the index. And in mid 2004, the company was acquired by ProLogis.

IT WASN'T LESSER THEN!

THE DORSEY NOMINEES SAY IT SHOULD NOT BE LESSER NOW!!

A Quality Board Recruited:

Paul Dorsey, a fellow shareholder, has spent his personal time and money to find highly qualified candidates who share his philosophy of conservative, prudent investment, have no ties to the past at Power REIT, know how to analyze and create winning investment strategies, and most importantly, are independent of Lesser and his Current Board:

The Business Plan of the Dorsey Nominees

The Dorsey Nominees favor a prudent, gradual and safe growth strategy: steady, conservative investments in properties producing current income, with quality, long-term tenants, whose underlying value is based on sound, time-tested fundamentals.

The Dorsey Nominees consider lease executed, credit worthy, bona fide tenants a prerequisite for a 'traditional' and 'stabilized' asset to be considered for investment.

· Investments may include interests in land and other real property.

· The Dorsey Nominees have the business experience and backgrounds to analyze the risk/reward of investments, The Dorsey Nominees believe in analyzing the Tax, Investment Risk, Competitive Environment, and Life Cycle of Real Estate Investments prior to jumping in,

· The Dorsey Nominees will not put themselves in a position which conflicts with the Shareholder's best Interest,

· The Dorsey Nominees shall not participate in the types of potential self dealings enumerated in the Trust's Form S-3.

The Dorsey Nominees' property acquisition strategy will be to identify stabilized properties, those with lease-executed, credit worthy and bona fide tenants that currently generate positive cash flow and have long-term leases in place with substantially low long-term risk that such positive cash flow would be interrupted. The Dorsey Nominees have a traditional approach: avoid high risk development projects; investigate potential tenants, not just for immediate financial ability to pay, but also look at the economic risks of the industries they are in, and try to limit its leases to those where the tenant is responsible for all costs of maintenance and upkeep (like the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad, the traditional business of the Trust), all in order to better assure a steady and reliable cash flow.
