The following is a letter delivered to employees of The Procter & Gamble Company (P&G) via the P&G intranet site on September 1, 2016.

September 1, 2016

P&G Colleagues:

Today we are announcing the launch of a share exchange offer in connection with the transfer of select P&G Specialty Beauty brands to Coty Inc.

This is the next step towards completion of the Coty transaction and a significant step forward in our effort to simplify and streamline our portfolio and operations to better enable balanced top- and bottom-line growth, and leadership value creation.

When we announced our agreement with Coty last July, we shared our intent to structure this agreement in a way that maximizes value for P&G shareholders, by being tax-efficient and minimizing earnings dilution. This is fully consistent with that intent.

The exchange offer provides P&G shareholders the opportunity to exchange shares of P&G common stock for shares of Galleria Co. common stock, which will convert into shares of Coty class A common stock upon completion of the merger which we expect to happen in October. The exchange and the merger are expected to be tax-free to participating P&G shareholders for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Participation in the exchange offer is voluntary, and shareholders have the option to tender none, some or all of their P&G shares. Shares held directly, in P&G's Direct Stock Purchase Plan, or in brokerage accounts, banks or similar institutions may be tendered by following the instructions provided in the offering materials. However, shares held in employee benefit plans such as the P&G Profit Sharing Trust and Employee Stock Ownership Plan or the P&G International Stock Ownership Plan cannot be tendered in the exchange offer.

Further details can be found in this news release or by visiting the website that we have created to facilitate the exchange process. Answers to frequently asked questions for employees can be found here.

Given the complex nature of exchange offers, it is not unusual for there to be significant media attention throughout the process. Should there be any significant changes that warrant additional perspective, we will share updates via PGOne. Otherwise, we will next update you when we will announce the results of the exchange offer.

I want to take this opportunity to acknowledge the efforts, and importantly the results, of the many employees who remain fully committed to the businesses that will transition to Coty, and recognize their continued focus, dedication and professionalism. I also want to recognize the efforts of all the employees who are working to ensure a smooth transition. Thank you.

Jon Moeller
