Item 5. Other Events and Regulation FD Disclosure

Sun Microsystems, Inc. and two of its subsidiaries located in The People's Republic of China and Hong Kong entered into settlement agreements with the United States Government regarding export licensing matters previously disclosed by Sun in its filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The specific matters cover the period between 1997 and 2002 and involved the export of computers to China and Egypt, as well as violations related to certain record keeping requirements with respect to past exports to a variety of countries. Sun had the appropriate licenses authorizing exports to the other countries involved, but failed to comply with some of the license conditions regarding filing post-shipment documents.

Sun and its subsidiaries have agreed to pay a one-time civil penalty in the amount of $291,000. In addition, the U.S. Department of Commerce has suspended an order denying Sun export privileges for one year commencing December 15, 2003. This settlement does not involve criminal charges.
