QUARTERLY HIGHLIGHTS

TO OUR SHAREHOLDERS:

Despite the extreme market volatility that has hurt the overall industry, Lincoln delivered solid results for the first quarter. We reported income from operations of $178.6 million or $.92 per diluted share for the first quarter 2001.

During the quarter, we continued to focus on the elements of our performance that we could control - developing and delivering market-leading products, aggressively supporting our partners and distribution teams and carefully managing expenses.

Our Annuities segment reported earnings of $82.3 million for the quarter. From both an annuity deposit and net cash flow perspective, this was our best quarter in over a year. Our new products and wider distribution are certainly having an impact. Annuity deposits reached $1.4 billion, an increase of 9 percent over the fourth quarter. And, as we continued to narrow the gap between deposits and redemptions, net cash flows improved 13.4 percent, or $91 million over the fourth quarter. The improvement in net flows was due to an increase in sales. This is quite impressive given the fact that most other annuity companies are seeing declining sales.

Life Insurance earnings were $68.6 million, an increase of $8.2 million or 13.6 percent over last year's first quarter. This growth in earnings is a result of continued solid growth in the block of business and expense management. In-force grew to $219 billion, an 8.7 percent increase over first quarter 2000 on the strength of sales and good persistency.

Income from operations for our Reinsurance segment was $46.8 million. These strong results were due to the benefit from a change in estimate of premiums receivable, partially offset by high mortality costs.

Our Investment Management segment reported income from operations of $2.4 million. The lower earnings were primarily affected by lower account values stemming from equity market declines. Our relative investment performance has improved in both the retail and institutional areas. This has resulted in an improved level of negative net flows.

Lincoln UK reported income from operations of $14.4 million. As we previously announced, we ceased writing new business in the UK.

The equity market's volatility has presented a challenging operating environment for us. However, I believe Lincoln is proving that good management of the controllable factors leads to good relative performance in the long term.

Sincerely,

/S/ Jon A. Boscia

Income4LIFE SM Solution Offers Lifetime Income and Control

As more people are both planning for and beginning to retire, Lincoln Annuities has chosen an opportune time to introduce the Income4LifeSM Solution.

With traditional retirement products, clients are faced with the choice of either lifetime income, or access and control over their money. Now, Lincoln Annuities' Income4Life Solution offers both access to retirement assets, along with a lifetime income. However, the Income4Life Solution is not a new product; it's an option that enhances strong and established annuity products offered through The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company. With the Income4Life Solution, clients stay in control of their money - choosing how it is invested, deciding how often to receive income and reallocating investment options. Additionally, unlike standard retirement products, the Income4Life Solution provides account statements and daily unit values so clients always know exactly where they stand.

Edgar Filing: LINCOLN NATIONAL CORP - Form 8-K

The Income4Life Solution offers tax advantages, too. Other benefits include a joint survivor feature and professional money managers.

"The Income4Life Solution provides a brand new way for retirees and others to manage their money. In fact, this option is so pioneering that there are patents pending on the concept," said Bill Boscow, senior vice president and chief marketing officer for Lincoln Annuities.

Through the introduction of the Income4Life Solution, Lincoln Financial Group distinguishes itself from its competitors by again demonstrating its dedication to developing innovative features while maintaining a clear focus on client needs.

Access to your retirement assets and a lifetime income.

"Powered By Research": The Recreation of Delaware Investments

The Delaware Investments of today is considerably different from the Delaware of 18 months ago. The firm's culture, branding and investment performance, all have undergone radical change, spearheaded by President and CEO Ed Haldeman, Jr.

Haldeman joined Delaware in January 2000, and immediately began focusing on performance. While some investment portfolios were performing well, many were not. The firm could not hope to change its fortunes without improving performance. Delaware also needed to develop a cohesive corporate culture in order to survive in the highly competitive financial services industry. In the past, Delaware managers were encouraged to act as independent entrepreneurs to service their clients' needs. However, this business model didn't work in today's competitive environment. For this reason, Delaware moved to a corporate model that requires business units to work together.

In the next nine months, a number of changes were orchestrated:

- * In the value equities area, the investment management style was revamped and modernized. Six new research analysts were added to the value team as well. A significant improvement in performance has resulted.
- * In growth equities, performance was excellent, but the firm wanted to offer more growth products. Three new analysts were added to the firm's growth team.
- * In fixed income, Delaware hired 20 investment professionals. This team includes 15 research analysts, and greatly expands the unit's capacity.
- * The London-based team that specializes in international investments also increased its research commitment with four new analysts.

Research is now a consistent theme throughout Delaware. That theme was re-emphasized when the firm chose its new tagline, which will appear in advertisements beginning in May. The tagline, "Powered by Research," refers to the firm's dedication to fundamental research in every asset class. The increased emphasis on research is beginning to pay off where it counts:

Edgar Filing: LINCOLN NATIONAL CORP - Form 8-K

with performance. In the trailing 12-month period ending March 31, 2001, 14 of Delaware's 25 largest funds outperformed their Lipper averages.

At the same time, the firm is revamping its mutual fund lineup by merging and/or eliminating 14 funds that had not gathered significant assets. The marketing efforts will now focus on funds that have proven to be more popular. Delaware also has begun to add new funds that are likely to attract assets, starting with the Delaware American Services Fund. This fund invests in stocks of U.S. companies in the financial, business and consumer services sectors. Although the equity markets are currently volatile, Delaware takes a long-term approach to investing. By conducting intensive investment research, its goal is to find fundamentally sound investment opportunities in all market cycles.

The firm's institutional business has aligned its sales and marketing organization to better serve its institutional clients. More significant sales and servicing responsibilities have been established to support the investment professionals in building the firm's relationships with its clients.

Delaware's retirement business is changing as well. In February, Rene M. Campis was named executive vice president of the unit, and immediately rolled out major initiatives to generate new business and retain existing clients. One of the most significant initiatives is the alignment of all the retirement unit's resources. This includes integrating some of Lincoln's 401(k) business into the Delaware unit and increasing the new enrollment support group to boost assets under management.

Delaware's focus has recently turned to devising ways to publicize all these changes. As part of its corporate branding campaign, the "Powered By Research" tagline has been incorporated in all sales literature.

In short, Delaware's employees are focused on common goals to a greater extent than ever. Haldeman described his philosophy at a recent employee meeting. "Regardless of what area you work in - customer service, sales, operations," he said, "every person contributes in some way or another to our main goal of gaining and retaining clients. As we achieve that goal, Delaware will be a success and each of you will be successful."

NEW UL PRODUCT PROVIDES FLEXIBILITY

As our lives become increasingly hectic and demanding, flexibility plays an essential role in providing peace of mind, especially when it comes to life insurance. Lincoln Life's new universal life insurance product, Lincoln UL-III Life Protection, is designed to provide flexibility and guaranteed death benefit coverage through its innovative Lapse Protection Rider. The Rider is automatically included on all policies at no additional charge. Unlike some premium-based guarantees, Lincoln UL-III and the Lapse Protection Rider offer policy owners the flexibility to adjust or skip planned premium payments, borrow against or withdraw a portion of the policy's cash value, and make other policy changes without totally forfeiting the death benefit guarantee.

"Based on input from our planners and clients, we designed a unique, flexible and cost-effective guarantee-based product that fits the individual life insurance needs of our target market, the super affluent. With the introduction of the Lincoln UL-III Life Protection product, we have distinguished ourselves in the industry," said Andrew Niedzielski, second vice president and business leader for Lincoln Life's Fixed Product Line.

"The attractiveness of Lincoln UL-III lies in the broad flexibility of its guarantees to adjust to life's changing (financial) circumstances," Niedzielski noted. "Sophisticated clients are not interested in one-size-fits-all insurance. Rather, they have specific life insurance needs - needs that change with time."

By creating the Lincoln UL-III insurance product, Lincoln Life once again has responded to the needs of the super affluent market, and provided another clear solution in a complex world.
