What are corporate notes? | Amount | Interest Rate | Features | More Information |
Some large corporations allow individuals to invest directly in their company's senior, unsecured debt through corporate note programs. By issuing corporate notes, companies can borrow capital directly from a large number of investors at a fairly low cost, while providing investors with benefits such as:

Higher rates of interest than other cash alternatives like FDIC insured savings accounts, short term CDs, and money market mutual funds. Investments that are fully redeemable at any time. Convenient banking type features like check writing, free electronic transfers between linked checking accounts, and the ability to wire funds. SEC Filings Corporate notes are a direct, unsecured investment in the debt of a corporation, and so are not FDIC insured. Unlike short term bond funds or money market mutual funds, they are not diversified pools of investments. Because they are a form of unsecured credit, you would be treated as an unsecured creditor in the event of a default. That's why it is critical for you to evaluate the financial strength of the company you choose to invest in. Learn more about GE Capital. Make sure the name of the trustee (and co trustee if applicable) appears on these pages. Backtec What is a Uniform Gift to Minors Account The Uniform Gift to Minors Act (UGMA) or the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (UTMA) is a type of custodial account for children. Most states have adopted one form of these uniform acts as a means of transferring ownership of property to children. The Acts allow a person to fund an investment for a child, but limit that child's access to the investment until the child reaches the age of majority. The age of majority is set by state law and typically ranges from 18 to 21. The child is the investment owner, but the parent (or other adult) is named as custodian. The custodian controls the investment until the child is no longer a minor. At that point, the custodial relationship ends and the child controls the investment.

Using secured browsers and 128 bit encryption technology, you can be assured security is our number one priority In fact, 128 bit encryption is one of the highest levels of encryption currently available. 128 bit encryption is the process of scrambling information (typically for data transmission) so that only someone who has the correct encryption key can reassemble it in its original plaintext format. When used between you and GE Interest Plus, this encryption technology allows you to encode (or encrypt) your personal information as you send it to us. Only GE Interest Plus can decrypt it. Likewise, when we send personal or account information to you, this technology allows us to encode it, and only you can decode it. In the box below, you will be able to see whether the browser you are currently using has 128 bit encryption. If it is noted that your browser does not have 128 bit encryption, please go to the section labeled Download a browser with 128 bit encryption. It is essential that you upgrade your browser before you enter Online Access. You are currently using a compatible version 6.0 of Microsoft Internet Explorer with 128 bit encryption, which will allow you to access GE Interest Plus¹ Online Access There is no need to upgrade your
