Speaker: Randall Stephenson, Chairman & CEO, AT&T Inc.

Today we announced an agreement for AT&T to acquire Time Warner, the global leader in media and entertainment with terrific businesses like HBO, Warner Bros. and Turner.

The media and communications industries are converging. And when it comes down to it, premium content always wins. It's been true on the big screen, the TV screen, and now it's proving to be true on the mobile screen.

The combination of Time Warner and AT&T creates a unique company that will lead the next wave of innovation in how people enjoy video entertainment.

Our goal is to give consumers unmatched choice, quality, value and experiences that will define the future of media and communications.

Time Warner is second to none in creating content that connects with audiences around the world and its vast library is unrivaled. Hands down -- they have the best creative talent in the industry.

And when you combine this content with 100 million plus consumers who subscribe to AT&T's TV, mobile and broadband service ... you have something really special.

The future of video is mobile and the future of mobile is video. There will always be big screen TVs in our homes, but mobile video is what our customers are demanding.

And only AT&T will have the world's best premium content with the networks to deliver it to every screen.

We expect to close this transaction by the end of 2017.

In the meantime, we'll keep you informed on our progress along the way.

Thank you.

Speaker: Jeffrey Bewkes, Chairman & CEO, Time Warner Inc.

This is an exciting day for Time Warner and for everyone who loves all the great content we create at Turner, HBO and Warner Bros.

Joining forces with AT&T dramatically accelerates our ability to deliver on our most important strategic priorities: and that's bringing our leading brands and premium content to consumers across all platforms and devices, as we capitalize on the tremendous opportunities created by the growing demand for video content all over the world.

We've been making great progress already - both in partnership with our distributors, and on our own by directly connecting with consumers. But now, by combining our content businesses with AT&T's more than 100 million subscribers across television, mobile and broadband, and the customer insights that provides, we can take our ability to innovate faster -- and pursue these opportunities -- really on a whole new level.

So as we continue to tell the world's best and most important stories, I'm really excited about the future we're going to help create with AT&T and what that means not just for our creators and journalists, but for consumers and fans everywhere.

Thanks.
