materially from such statements. Risks and uncertainties relating to the proposed transaction with Vulcan include, but are not limited to: the ability of Martin Marietta to accept Martin Marietta's proposal and enter into a definitive transaction agreement reasonably satisfactory to the parties; Martin Marietta's ability to obtain shareholder, antitrust and other approvals on the proposed terms and schedule; uncertainty as to the actual premium that will be received in connection with the proposed transaction; uncertainty of the expected financial performance of the combined company following the proposed transaction; Martin Marietta's ability to achieve the cost-savings and synergies contemplated by the proposed transaction within the time frame anticipated; Martin Marietta's ability to promptly and effectively integrate the businesses of Vulcan and Martin Marietta; the combined company's ability to meet the amounts anticipated; a downgrade of the credit rating of Vulcan's indebtedness, which could give rise to an obligation to redeem the debt; the potential implications of alternative transaction structures with respect to Vulcan, Martin Marietta and/or the combined company; the offer to repurchase certain of Martin Marietta's existing debt; the implications of the proposed transaction on certain of Martin Marietta's employee benefit plans; and disruption from the proposed transaction making it more difficult to maintain relationships with customers, employees and suppliers. Other risks and uncertainties include, but are not limited to: the performance of the United States economy; decline in aggregates prices; the possibility that Congress will pass a successor federal highway bill; the discontinuance of the federal gasoline tax or other revenue related to infrastructure and the timing of federal and state transportation funding, including federal stimulus projects; the ability of states and/or other entities to raise money either with tax revenues or alternative financing structures; levels of construction spending in the markets that Martin Marietta and Vulcan serve, including the commercial component of the nonresidential construction market, notably office and retail space; a slowdown in residential construction; weather conditions, particularly Atlantic Ocean hurricane activity, the late start to spring or the early onset of winter and the impact of heavy rainfall in the markets served by Martin Marietta and Vulcan; the volatility of fuel costs, particularly diesel fuel, and the impact of inflation, including on, namely steel, explosives, tires and conveyor belts; continued increases in the cost of other repair and supply parts; transportation delays and availability on the Mississippi River system and the availability of railcars and locomotive power to move trains to supply Martin Marietta's distribution markets; increased transportation costs, including increases from higher passed-through energy and other costs to customers, as well as higher volumes of rail and water shipments; availability and cost of construction equipment in the United States; weaker demand for the markets served by Martin Marietta's dolomitic lime products; inflation and its effect on both production and interest costs; Martin Marietta's ability to complete acquisitions and business combinations quickly and in a cost-effective manner and achieve anticipated profitability to maintain its current leverage ratio debt covenants; changes in tax laws, the interpretation of such laws and/or administrative practices that would increase Vulcan's tax rate; violation of Martin Marietta's debt covenant if price and/or volumes return to previous levels of instability; a decrease in Martin Marietta's or Vulcan's indebtedness; downward pressure on Martin Marietta's or Vulcan's common stock price and its impact on valuations; the highly competitive nature of the construction materials industry; the impact of future regulatory or legislative action, including legal proceedings; healthcare costs; the amount of long-term debt and interest expense; changes in interest rates; volatility in prices; the need to require cash contributions to pension plans; the impact of environmental clean-up costs and liabilities relating to previously divested assets; secure and permit aggregates reserves in strategically located areas; exposure to residential construction markets; and the impact of the proposed transaction (including its giving effect to the proposed transaction with Vulcan) of any of the foregoing risks, as well as other risk factors listed from time to time in Vulcan's filings with the SEC.

The foregoing review of important factors should not be construed as exhaustive and should be read in conjunction with the other information included elsewhere, including the Risk Factors section of the Registration Statement and our most recent report on Form 10-K, as filed by Martin Marietta and Vulcan filed with the SEC. Any forward-looking statements made in this presentation are qualified in their entirety by the information there can be no assurance that the actual results or developments anticipated by us will be realized or, even if substantially realized, will have the consequences to, or effects on, us or our business or operations. Except to the extent required by applicable law, we undertake no obligation to revise any forward-looking statement, whether as a result of new information, future developments or otherwise.
